STANDING IN A PASTURE NEAR THEIR HOME are Reuben and Naomi Friend with two grandchildren. This couple has cared for 63 foster children. "God has never made a child they wouldn't take," says Bob Shaffer, a supervisor at the Garrett County Department of Social Services.

"I was never so happy as when I got that little girl," said Mildred.

Within a few weeks after bringing the child home, a social worker stopped by to tell them a family could not just give a child away, but they could keep the child if they became a licensed foster home.

They agreed, but later argued when the social worker tried to convince them to take more foster children. "All we wanted was one," said Mildred.

Mildred's memories range from the thoughtful acts, to the pain when one child stole several hundred dollars and then denied it, to the humor when one mentally handicapped boy overheard her say some of her flower beds needed spading and in a spirit of helpfulness spaded up her flower bed, her tulip bed and a large part of the lawn.

The Friends, too, have an overabundance of memories. Their's include the time one boy broke out all the windows in the house and three out buildings and busted all the canned jellies in their basement. To this day he cannot explain why he did it.

Then there was the time one set fire to the house and another time when Naomi spent the night sleeping on the living room floor with a newcomer to prevent him from leaving and to make him feel welcome.

Their most rewarding experience was their care for a fiveyear-old autistic child who developed into a warm, well-adjusted person who is now married.

Particular memories which stand out for the Orendorfs are the time when they had three infants, one was their own. Another time involved two youngsters when they were found "baking", both covered with broken eggs and flour.

Included in these parents' memories is the times they spent with case workers who have always been their supporting hand.

Best summing up the feelings expressed by all was Naomi's her sister who kept foster words, "The people at social services have been good to us. For Hugh, it was part of his There is nobody like them. We couldn't have done this without uncle Noah Brenneman was the them. first administrator for the

"You have to really love children to do this. You can't expect things to be perfect." Caring for many children takes hard work and management skills. During the school year, Viola has to keep track of five different bus schedules, including Hugh's departure at 6:30 a.m. for his job at Rigidply Rafters, south of Oakland.

With growing children to feed, food consumption is tremendous. For example, in one year the Orendorf's bunch ate about 300 quarts of applesauce and 100 quarts of tomato

Through all the years, their joys and sorrows, each family said they would be foster parents again if they had their lives to live over again.

'We have never regretted it," said Viola.

"This is not all in vain," said Naomi. "I think the children appreciate it. The majority of them will."

Mildred, who said she has enjoyed every bit of her life as a foster parent, noted, "I always wanted children of my own, but never had any. I found, though, that God had a place for me.'

ONE OF MILDRED PETERSON'S lavorite hobbies is raising flowers. She and her late husband, Walt, were the first couple to become licensed as foster parents in the county.

The grant, which is expected to become available in the next month or so, allows communities with water problems to improve and rejuvenate existing systems.

Two representatives of Flushing Shirt Company, including Jim Vincent, Grantsville factory manager, met with the council Monday night to discuss problems with the plant's storage tank, which is in need of repair and painting. The company officials stated that with a new air-cooled compressor, the company can eliminate the present water-cooled equipment, at a great water savings to both entities. No determination was made on who would fix the storage tank problems.

"Wildfire danger remains abnormally high as dry, hot weather continues in Maryland," cautioned Forest and Park Service Director Don MacLauchlan as he urged Marylanders to maintain their safe attitude during this period.

THE COST OF FRIENDSHIP August 21, 1983

Background Scripture: 1 Samuel 18:1-9; 19:1-7; 20:1-42; 23:15-18; 2 Samuel 1 Devotional Reading: 1 Thessalonians 3

Jonathan and David were the best of friends.

It is an interesting friendship, when you examine it closely, for there seemed to be a certain inequality about it. Jonathan appeared to give a lot more than he received. He was the son of King Saul and heir to the throne of Israel. David, on the other hand, came from a humble family. Even more than that, however, David stood as a threat to Jonathan's succession to the throne. For, although Jonathan had the legal right to that succession, David obviously had the popularity from the people.

But perhaps the greatest cost of their friendship was to be Jonathan's recognition that it was David, not himself, who was to be his father's successor. While David is in hiding at Horesh, Jonathan goes to him and declares: 'Fear not; for the hand of Saul my father shall not find you; you shall be king over Israel, and I shall be next to you; Saul my father also knows this." With these words, Jonathan is willing to give up everything except his love for David and his recognition that his friend has been chosen by God to possess what had been his Jonathan dreamed of that day when David would be king and he, Jonathan, would be his friend's right-hand man. It was a dream that he was not to realize. At Mount Gilboa he fell alongside his father in defeat at the hands of the Philistines.

Mark Patton, who is on view around the country this week in the new one-hour Liberty Mutual special, "Kelsey's Son," is a rarity among young actors. He says he faced no rejections before getting his first audition. Patton's "Kelsey" co-star is Chuck Connors, who plays his stern but misunderstood and loving dad. Patton arrived in New York as an innocent 18year-old from Riverside, Kan. He had $132 saved from odd jobs back home, with which he found he could keep a roof over his head at the Sheraton for one night, but not two. So he scouted for temporary office jobs, found a more affordable place to live and sustained until he found an agent for whom a hopeful actor could audition.

Somehow he has gotten every role he went after. "That hasn't happened to a lot of my peers," Patton admits, "but a lot of them are doing all right." First there was a string of Off-Broadway plays. then he made it to Broadway in "Come Back to the 5 & Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean" with Cher, Karen Black and Sandy Dennis. He also did

Determination Of Alcohol Source New Phase Of DWI Enforcement

In the continuing attempt to rid Maryland's highways of the drunk driver, the State Police have expanded the DWI Enforcement Program to include a "Countermeasure Program." The program called, "Determination of Alcohol Source," began August 1, 1983. Briefly, the program proposes to question individuals arrested for a motor vehicle related offense or collision, and discover the location where the alcohol was purchased and/or consumed before the arrest. The objective would be to identify restaurants, taverns or packaged goods stores that may possibly be serving intoxicated patrons. Information from such inquiries, which is then found to meet certain criteria, will then be forwarded to the appropriate licensing authorities for their review and consideration.

inquiry of the intoxicated violator should attempt to determine: the name and location where alcoholic said. beverages were consumed prior to his/her arrest, and if a licensed establishment is named, the violator's time of departure from tha establishment, the total length of time spent there, and whether or not alcohol had actually been purchased or consumed at the location. At the time of the inquiry, visible signs of intoxication will be noted and it will be decided whether drugs may have been a factor. These will be recorded in detail. In the event a licensed beverage establishment is identified as one meeting the selection criteria, a letter will be forwarded to that establishment. The county licensing authority will be notified only after three such reports have been received by an establishment within a twelve month period. Licensing authorities additional reports be received. It is not intended that such information be used in any formal action by the Maryland State Police. It is an informational source to determine whether further investigation of an establishment is warranted. The respective licensed establishment, as well as the county licensing authority, once in receipt of this information, will be able to apply it as a means to monitor their businesses to avoid serving alcoholic beverages to visibly intoxicated patrons. The Maryland State Police said they feel confident that responsible members of the business community will assist them in reducing the number of persons who might drink and drive. "Their cooperation will help to reduce the high number of alcohol related motor vehicle At the time of the arrest, the injuries and fatalities associated with the consumption of alcoholic beverages," a MSP spokesman

FEE SIMPLE

You've probably heard the familiar saying "The Greeks had a word for it." As a person becomes more and more familiar with the real estate business and Realtors, it becomes apparent that we also have a word or phrase for everything.

For example, suppose you own some land and it's yours, all yours. You have a free and clear title to it and you can do what you want with it (as long as it's legal!). No one else has any interest or claim on that land. Is there a phrase for it? There is! It's called fee simple, and refers to the highest and most complete ownership and interest in land. The question may come up regarding leasing the land. Suppose you lease the land to someone else for a period of, say, five years. Do you still own the land in fee simple? The answer is yes, although you do give up some of your rights by allowing the other person to lease the land and pay you rent for those five years.

So keep that phrase "fee simple" in mind, because if you're in that position, you can $ consider yourself very fortunate. One of our greatest satisfactions as Realtors is starting people on the way to fee simple ownership.

Queen Introduced To Farm Bureau

During Tuesday evening's Farm Bureau night at the Garrett County Fair, Clark Kolb, State Director, introduced the 1983 Garrett County Farm Queen, Karen Hamilton, who expressed her appreciation at being selected, and thanked the Farm Bureau Women's Committee, and "all who were responsible for making it all possible." She said agriculture plays a "very important roll" in Garrett County, and she is "delighted" to be a part of it. First runner-up, Dove Wassell, was also introduced and also expressed her thankfulness. She hopes to come back next year, "possibly win the

Fertilize Strawberries

Mid-August is the time to fertilize strawberries. Apply 11/2 pints of 10-10-10 fertilizer for each row of berry plants 50 feet long and about 2 feet wide. If some of the fertilizer granules remain on the leaves you may brush them off with a tree branch or broom. Strawberry plants form blooms in late summer. These remain tucked away in plant crowns until next spring when they push out to bring forth the delightful berries.

Webs in Trees

At this time of the year we see ends of branches in various fruit and shade trees covered with silken webs. Inside these webs are small vellowish fuzzy caterpillars. These are fall webworms. Webs of fall webworms increase in size as the caterpillars extend their feeding area and may cover an area two or three feet long at the ends of branches. Webworms can be controlled by spraying with Sevin, Diazinon or Dursban. However, the spray must penetrate the webs. If the caterpillars are not sprayed, branches are not seriously damaged and will grow new leaves next spring. Presence of the caterpillars this year doesn't mean they will

Salt and Minerals are Very Important for Beef Cattle Many producers forget that salt and minerals should be kept before beef cattle herds throughout the entire summer. Salt consumption is greater during the grazing season than during the winter period because of the increased amount of moisture consumed along with the pasture. Breeding herds should have, in addition to trace mineralizer salt, a complete mineral mix containing calcium and phosphorus. Phosphorus is very important for breeding herds in relation to getting cows settled. This is particularly true when primary pasture grass is fescue. Covered salt and mineral boxes are needed and should be placed where cattle congregate.

School Buses To Be Detoured Under Bridge

When school begins on September 1, fourteen Garrett County school buses which usually cross the Bear Creek Bridge along U.S. 219 will detour on a county road under the bridge while it undergoes repairs by the State Highway Administration, says Michael Sines, transportation director for the county school system.

Sines said Monday many parents in the Friendsville and Accident areas whose children ride these school buses have become alarmed with the danger of the single-lane bridge at the bottom of a long, steep grade from Northern High School. Their concern is that southbound vehicles could lose their brakes and crash into a bus crossing the bridge or stopped at the traffic light at the bridge.

Buses taking the detour, which will be used only during morning runs as buses ascend the hill, will travel along Route 53 to Fish Hatchery Road which goes under the bridge, and then take Collier Road to U.S. 219 north of the bridge.

Sines said the detour will be used in the morning because there is more danger to buses from southbound traffic in the Saturday, an age probably morning than from northbound traffic in the afternoon.

Wallace Beaulieux, district engineer for the State Highway Administration, said Tuesday eliminate danger at the bridge, but in some places it is also a one-lane road.

Rabid Raccoon Brings County Total To 14

Garrett County encountered its 14th rabid animal this past week, when a rabid raccoon was killed in the Avilton area, off Blocher Road.

According to Rodney Glotfelty, rabies prevention coordinator for the county health department, the animal wandered into the James Smith vard. Smith killed the animal and placed it in a tree to await the health department official who sent it to the state lab for tests. Positive results were announced Tuesday afternoon.

Smith will have to visit a physician to determine whether he will need to undergo treatment with rabies vaccine since he did not use gloves to handle the animal.

The health department cautions all residents who may encounter a possibly rabid animal to cover the animal with some type of protection and leave the carcass for the health department to pick up. Residents are urged never to touch any suspect animal without gloves.

The department is also reminding all individuals that if it is necessary to kill a suspected rabid animal, care should be taken to avoid damaging the brain. If the brain is damaged it is impossible for the The commissioners dis- state lab to conduct the necessary tests to determine if rabies

A statewide survey was conducted in the past two weeks to determine whether there was sufficient damage from the recent drought to seek a federal disaster declaration from the U.S. Department of Agriculture which would make farmers eligible for low interest, longterm loans.

What knocked Garrett County out of the running was its fairly good yield after the first cutting of hay which was enough to offset some of the loss on the second crop, Halterman explained. Farmers in the county lost about two-thirds of their second crop of hay.

If the county receives more rain, county farmers should realize yields of their corn crop equal to last year's crop of 95 bushels per acre, Halterman predicted

Farmers who have been hurting the most are those with beef cattle who have to feed their animals some of the first hay crop because of practically nonexistent pasture, county extension agent Jim Simms said

Dedicated To John . . .

The number of persons who reach the age of 100 is far less than one percent of all persons. With each year over 100, the already-tiny percentage drops dramatically to minuscule levels. We wish to dedicate this column today to John Yommer, of Grantsville, who turned 105 years of age on Saturday. We do so not just because it is so rare that a person is blessed with such longevity, and not just because he is undoubtedly the first person in Garrett County history to reach this age. More importantly, we do so because of the uniqueness and remarkableness of this person, John Yommer.

It's fascinating to realize that John Yommer was old enough to vote at the turn of the 20th century. There were only 38 states in the union when he was born, he has lived under 21 U.S. presidents, was almost middle aged when World War I began, has seen changes in methods of transportation from the buggy to the automobile to the airplane to a walk on the moon, and was a senior citizen three years before the attack on Pearl Harbor!

What makes John Yommer a special person, though, are not the dates, numbers and statistics. The special things about John Yommer are his quick wit, his pleasant demeanor, his high moral standards, the clearness of his mind, and his incredible devotion to God and to the members of his

John was in his nineties when he single-handedly cared for his bed-ridden wife in a manner unsurpassed by young, professional nursing personnel. At the age of 102 he was still walking to church, maintaining his own residence and caring for his deaf younger brother, Dan. Visitors of John and Dan at that time reported that the house was unbelievably clean and neat as a pin.

John Yommer does not just exist. He is not connected to life support systems and in a state of utter senility, as many of his contemporaries are at this age. Although his hearing is fading, and his legs aren't what they used to be, he remains a vibrant human being with a sharp mind. He credits his faith in God as his source of strength, not only now, but throughout his entire life.

To you, John Yommer, we extend our congratulations, our admiration, our thanks for setting such a fine example of how to live, and our best wishes for continued good health.

Voice Box Roulette??

by Carol Fox

Newspapers and magazines are notorious for running unusual articles about people, animals, events, and the like. Last week, the wire services picked up on the story of a dog that was sentenced to death by a judge for "criminal barking,"

Now I ask you, how much sense does that make? named Max, was condemned to die Norfolk, Va., fire department chief complained to police that the dog was a public nuisance.

Granted, as the owner of an excitable Eskirno Spitz, her puppy, and a jealous Irish Setter, I can understand how incessant barking at odd and unusual hours could disturb, annoy, and downright anger a neighborhood. However, it's hard to believe that a dog barks simply to hear itself do so. (Come to think of it, I know a few humans who talk just for the sake of making noise). If the yip of a dog penetrates the still air, it's usually because a strange person, car, or other animal is about. Otherwise, the animal is in need of food, water, or personal care because of pain. An owner who does nothing to trace the cause of the barking dog is much more to blame for disturbances than the animal.

The Virginia pooch's owner was ticketed for maintaining a dog that is a public nuisance, but the owner's attorney has appealed the death sentence, so the German Shepherd is safe for the moment

The point is, if a dog can be put to death for communicating in the only way God offered, does this mean that the "gassbag" friends, co-workers, and acquaintances we all have are at the mercy of another for "running at the mouth?

To the Editor: The purpose of this communication is to reinforce the thoughts and opinions of the party who wrote a letter to the Editor relative to the very costly Garrett County Fair.

I have always been a supporter of the fair in past years. I thought it would be a great treat for my son, the Rev. Todd Turner, M. Div., who was our house guest at Green Glades, to accompany me to the fair. As we drove along Route 219 we saw many cars parked along why. When we came up to the gate we were both astounded to hear the man say that it would cost $8.00 to enter for the two of

To the Editor:

The information in your last issue stating that the county commissioners defend their action concerning the purchase of 10 Mack trucks costing $468,000 and additional equipment costing $285,000 deserves public attention.

This Board has now established its reputation as being irresponsible and reckless spenders. Their actions speak much louder than anything they

The big Mack trucks that they went out of the county to buy are not needed. The real need is for better management. Let them get some of their men out of the trucks. Give those riders a pick and a shovel and let them open the culverts so the water can get off the roads instead of running on past the culverts down the roads. The sides of some of our roads are in need of immediate attention. The management, not the workers. is to blame for this unnecessary condition. A couple of men on mowing machines cutting down the weeds and the grass, and some men with shovels doing the work that needs to be done would help to upgrade our county roads. Going out of the county and buying big trucks and machinery will not upgrade the county roads.

Instead of buying more machinery and trucks for $740,000, they ought to be using that money to reduce the debts. Former boards of county commissioners have borrowed millions of dollars from the state. The money was borrowed from the future gasoline tax. This debt to the state will be deducted in future years from the county share of the gasoline tax. I do not know for sure how much the past boards have borrowed. It would be to the public advantage if we could be informed.

Plaque District

A series of auto accidents plagued the district again this week, according to Maryland State Police, resulting in minor injuries and extensive property damage.

A 2 a.m. accident on the Glendale Road, near Paradise Point, slightly injured two men from the Washington, D.C. area, and Beverley E. Williams resulted in a citation for negligent driving for the driver, Terence J. Flynn, 45.

> According to the report, the Flynn auto was traveling east on the Glendale Road when the driver failed to negotiate a left curve, went off the road, and overturned.

Second Impression "Public be damned"

by Harry Fox

Trying to get the telephone company business office in the last few days has been reminiscent of the song about the guy on his way to Phoenix-the phone just keeps on ringin'

Of course, time was that residents of Garrett County could drop in at the telephone company office, in person. They still can, but only after a 100-mile drive to Hagerstown. This has been done, you see, in the interest of economy. That's why residential customers of C & P now must dial down state to reach the business office. It's the first time since phone wires were strung along the sidewalks of Oakland that customers in this area have not had a central business office at which to transact routine business and place orders for service.

As for the "work stoppage" in effect at the time I tried to call the phone company-who's to say what's fair? I can certainly understand the job security issue. The way the governmentarranged divestiture of the Bell System's operating companies looks from the consumers' point of view, it's difficult to be con-

The only certain thing appears to be that, whatever use you make of the telephone, in the future it will cost more. This will happen, we are told, because of the separation of lucrative long distance service from the maintenance and operation of local lines and equipment.

I'm no business forecaster, and I certainly don't claim to comprehend the delicate points of antitrust laws . . . but, something looks wrong, at least from where the customer stands.

Somewhere in my studies of American History I seem to recall that the beginnings of government "trust busting" had as a goal the protection of the public interest! It began precisely to combat the "public be damned" attitude of the corporate megaliths that grew up in the uncomplicated business climate of Presumably that is still the case. Obviously, in examining the records of the Bell System, justice department officials believed that lack of competition was compromising the rights of customers—and the national welfare. Right?

Why, then, should we see costs of telephone service rise under the newly reorganized Bell System? Why should the phone companies be spending thousands of dollars to "sell" a skeptical public on the benefits of the new order?

Perhaps it is just a symbol, but the newly reckoned efficiency" of closing the local business office signals little different for the consumer-so used to taking the short end of the Revisions to the board's policy on curricular, cocurricular and extra-curricular activities were approved by the board even though .. Dr. Ryscavage recommended against them. He pointed out the accepted changes removed much of the intent of the policy.

The changes accepted allow students who failed required courses the previous grading period to still practice with the team during the ineligibility period. The ineligibility period was also shortened from a nineweek period to a four and onehalf week period or one-half of a grading quarter.

Ryscavage pointed out that by allowing a student to practice during the period of ineligibility, he essentially has no more time to study to improve his grades than if he were a regular playing member.

Advocates of the changes said the student allowed to practice would be in condition to play with the team when the period of ineligibility ended and would be allowed to be under the influence of some of the key people who motivate that sutdent to excel.

Citizens Warned About Dangers Of Investments

Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs and Securities Commissioner K. Houston Matney have joined with the Baltimore Better Business Bureau in issuing an alert to Marylanders to beware of the possible dangers involved in gold and silver investments.

The North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA), of which Matney is a member, and the Council of Better Business that problems have developed for investors who purchase or invest in precious metals through dealers using unscrupulous or fraudulent Sachs and Matney warned Marylanders not to buy gold, silver or any precious metal over the telephone from a company whose name and reputation is vague and unknown.

"Gold and silver bullion dealers are largely unregulated in this country, and the public generally is on its own to protect itself in such transactions," Matney said. "Only after a fraud is discovered can we or federal agencies step in, so it's advance that unscrupulous gold and silver bullion dealers are a real threat."

Sachs noted that the NASAA and CBBB cited a number of warning signals investors should look for when dealing in precious metals:

- Don't buy precious metals advertised as "below spot prices". The "spot" price is the price fixed that day on major exchanges. Dealers selling gold or silver below that price are selling below the market, and that is a danger sign. Experience has shown that they often do not buy the ordered metals hoping that the market will go down, since that is the only way they can make money.

- Be leery of buying precious metals from dealers who pay a percentage of your investment as some sort of "rebate" for the right to hold your purchase. This is an indication of a possible fraud. Gold or silver bears no interest sitting in a vault (unless the dealer is in Bureaus (CBBB) conducted a another income producing survey recently which showed venture), so the only way the dealer can pay a percentage or interest for holding on to your precious metal is from the investments of other customers. "Ponzi" scheme.

- If you do have someone hold your gold, check into their reputation and integrity. A refusal by the dealer to deliver your gold within a reasonable period of time is a real red flag.

- Do not send money in the mail to a dealer by certified check. A safe method of payment, used by many legitimate dealers, is the delivery of the bullion or coins to your bank against your bank draft. That way, the bank will not release important that pepole know in your money until the gold or silver is in its hands or in your safe deposit box.

- Gold coins are harder to counterfeit than gold bars or ingots, although the gold bars issued by major U.S. and European companies and bearing their marks are as safe as coins. As with all investments, the purchase of precious metals is as safe as the reputation of the seller. It is wise to deal with established companies that have good reputations.

- Check the legitimacy of the dealer. Ask for bank references and check them out. Call the local Better Business Bureau for a reliability report on any company you are thinking of dealing with, and also check with the Maryland Attorney General's Securities Division (576-6360) or with the Consumer ()f *51 Meets Protection Division in Sach's office (528-8662).

IRRESISTIBLE SUMMER FRUITS

With summer's bounty of fresh fruits-you can serve your family "natures candy" naturally sweet and nutritious without the extra fat and calories of baked goods and other sweets. These general tips will help you in choosing most summer fruits:

1. Select fruits that look fresh (rather than wrinkled or wilted) and are reasonably unblemished.

2. Look for fruits with a shape and normal size-extremely small fruits are likely to be inferior in taste and texture as well as having more waste portions. Extremely large fruits may be overly mature, coarse, and less

3. Most fruits are sold ripe and will last longer if stored in your refrigerator. Other fruits can be ripened in your home at room temperature, not necessarily in the sunshine, to suit your own tastes.

These tips will help you when buying these summer

A family softball game in the park is typical summertime fun. There goes Johnny, slipping over the clover to catch a fly ball.

"Ouch! Ow! A bee just stung me!" Everyone hurries to help. The bee left a stinger; it's gently scraped out. The sting area is washed, an ice pack is put together and Johnny is told to rest awhile. Usually, that's all the first aid that a victim of an insect sting needs. But for those who are highly sensitive to the venom of bees, wasps, hornets and yellow jackets, a sting may cause an allergic reaction that requires prompt medical attention or even the use of life-

Perhaps the best source of immediate help when a sting brings on an allergic reaction is the emergency sting treatment kit. The treatment kit isn't a substitute for professional, medical care; it simply relieves allergy symptoms until the victim can be taken to a doctor or a hospital. Nor is the kit intended for all sting situations; it's used only for treating an allergic reaction during an emergency. The distinction, here, is between local reactions, like Johnny's, which affect only the area around the sting site, and severe allergic reactions, which can interfere with one or more of the body's life-sustaining functions, such as breathing or blood circulation, and are usually characterized by shortness of breath, extreme pallor around the lips and palpitations (rapid heart beat). The treatment kit isn't needed, and, in fact, isn't effective, when the reaction is local. But when allergies are involved, the kit can be a lifesaver, which is why allergic persons should insect stings is very low, especially among

You'll need a doctor's prescription to obtain a kit, and the doctor will tell you how to use it and how the drugs that it contains work to improve breathing and inhibit the allergic reaction. A tourniquet will be supplied, too, with instructions for applying it that should be followed carefully, to avoid impairing blood circula-

Other items that you might add to the kit are: tweezers or a razor blade, for scraping away a stinger (squeezing or pulling may cause the venom sac at the end of the stinger to release more venom); a second tourniquet, in case of multiple stings; alcohol swabs or towelettes, for cleansing the sting site; and coins, for summoning help at a pay telephone. Think about buying more than one kit-maybe a kit for your home, one for the office and one for a relative's home. The idea is to have a kit close at hand, for rapid use when you need it. You might also encourage personnel at your local swimming pool and neighborhood school to include a treatment kit as a regular part of their first

Having a kit on hand and knowing how to use it is important, but avoiding stings in the first place is even better. Most allergic reactions to stings are caused by the hymenoptera variety of insect-bees, wasps, hornets, yellow jackets and fire ants, which presently live only in the southeastern U.S. Other kinds of insects, such as black flies, also can cause allergic reactions in some people. By reading about the habitats and individual traits of these insects, allergic persons can learn how to avoid them or, if need be, how to identify the attacker, should a

Joanne Harsh, L.P.N. employed at Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home, is enrolled in the certificate program and feels strongly about the benefits. "I feel these courses are invaluable not only to geriatric aides in nursing homes, but also to nurses in general who must serve aging patients," stated Mrs. Harsh.

Verna Bender, director of nursing at Goodwill Mennonite Home in Grantsville, feels nursing assistants could benefit from courses in gerontology. "To seek out the needs of the elderly, such a program would be helpful especially in the area of nutrition which is so often neglected," Mrs. Bender said. 'Many elderly have become isolated and are no longer capable of socializing with family and friends. The course, Social and Economic Problems of the Elderly, is very important."

Mildred Dunbar, who is director of nursing and a Certified Nursing Administrator at Hopemont Hospital in Hopemont, W.Va., said the certificate program "sounds great." She feels the courses would benefit patient care when working with the elderly in nursing care, rehabilitation centers, or senior citizen centers.

In addition to professional growth, the Gerontology. Certificate Program or its individual courses would provide personal training for those who wish to become more skilled at caring for and understanding elderly members of the family.

The first course in the program, GER 101 Introduction to Gerontology, will be offered this fall. A schedule change requires the course to be offered Thursdays, 3:30-6:30, at the College's Oakland Center.

> Foundation Studies is a onesemester program of courses that prepares a student for college level work. In this semester, students take Communications Skills (an integrated approach to reading, writing, and oral communication), College Study Skills, Spelling Development, Preparatory Mathematics, Lifestyle Planning, and one three-credit introductory level course in social science, humanities, business, building construction, or coal mining. Throughout the semester, students meet in small groups with their advisors to review progress and to share their problems and successes. Foundation Studies students receive a great deal of individual help, according to Crawford.

Learning Skills courses are designed for students who need to review or improve their basic skills in reading, writing, and mathematics. Basic Writing and Introduction to College Reading can be taken for one or Right-Of-Way two credits, along with English 101 and certain other academic courses. # Barbecuing: all-American

summertime favorite

Barbecuing is an all-Before the first European explorers arrived on these shores, native American Indians were cooking their meat on hand-hewn spits suspended over an open fire. Later, when the pioneer settlers arrived from across the Atlantic, the Indians shared with them the secrets of bar-

In fact, the word "barbe cue" is probably derived from the Indian word barbacoa, which refers to the structures made of green wood which the Indians erected to hold meat as it cooked over a smouldering pit fire below.

An alternative - and more whimsical - deriva-tion of "barbecue" (brought according to legend to these shores by French-speaking pirates who stalked Carib bean waters), is that it was shortened from the French phrase barbe a queue, literally "beard to tail," encompassing the entire animal as it was spitted and cooked.

Origins aside, barbecuing remains one of the most popular ways of preparing food in this country. Though it can be approximated indoors all year round, it's generally associated with the outdoor living that the warm summer weather brings.

In the more southern reaches of our country, when a temperate climate prevails, barbecuing is most at home. It is these areas which have contributed most to the unique flavor of barbecue cookery, specifically foods prepared over an open fire and adorned by sweet and spicy sauces which use tomatoes or ketchup or, less frequently, mustard or fruit as a base. Usually the meat is marinated first, then basted with a savory liquid that improves both tenderness and flavor.

The following recipes for savory barbecued ribs and spicy chicken are examples of the infinite variety of barbecued foods. They're

Assessment Answers & Tax Talk

by James Burley ON THE COMBINED EFFECT OF HIGHER ASSESSMENTS AND TAX RATES

property tax rate was $2.28 per $100 of assessed valuation. This was the last year that property tax bills were issued on the basis of the old yearly assessing system. The current method, called triennial assessments, was adopted by Maryland that year, but the first impact on property taxes did not occur until 1980. At that time - 1979 among the counties, Prince cents per $100 of assessed valu-George's had the highest rate: ation. $3.04, and Worcester the lowest: $1.38. Howard County's rate of $2.28 was the same as the statewide average.

In 1983, the average tax rate climbed to $2.38, an increase jump of 53 cents, from $2.5 to concentrations and the concentrations are supported by the concentration of the concentration o

In 1979, the average local cents. Baltimore County displaced Prince George's as the county in the unenviable position of having the highest rate: $2.99; and Talbot edged out Worcester for the enviable position of having the lowest rate: $1.27. Meanwhile, the state property tax rate (the state levies one as well as all local governments) increased by five percent, from 20 to 21

Two pact of the increase, but there counties, Caroline at $2.16 and Kent at $2.00, have the same tax rate as they had in 1979. The tax rates are only half the story, the other half being the assessment. For the same period, the statewide real property taxable base increased from $30.6 billion to $38.8 billion, reflecting a 27 percent increase. Theoretically, had tax rates dropped enough to offset the effect of the increased assessable base, the average tax rate could be $1.80 per $100 of assessed valuation instead of the actual $2.38.

What does this mean to the property owner? Using averages on a hypothetical house valued at $50,000 and increasing in value to $75,000, this is the practical implication. The 1979 assessment would have been $22,500 and the combined state and local ad valorem property taxes would have been $558, exclusive of water, sewage, and other fixed charges. The 1983 tax assessment would be $33,196 and the resultant property tax $860. This translates into a 54 percent increase, or a property tax about $300 greater than it was in

Peppard's 'A-Team' is a ratings superstar

By Peter Meade

There has got to be some-body up in the great control room in the sky who is looking out for George Peppard. You can bet your 19-inch color remote control on that.

Who else could walk - or was he pushed? - off the set of TV's top evening soap "Dynasty," but to return last January in the only midseason show that becomes a big hit?

Peppard certainly didn't earn his spot as the leader of NBC's "A-Team" because of his record as a Hollywood nice guy. There are those, especially ex-wife Elizabeth Ashley, who think Peppard's behavior should earn his own weekly spot in the scandal sheets you see at the supermarket checkout lines. But when he's working Peppard resembles a crewcut boy

"On the set," he says, "I'm the essential worker, a quiet professional who demands that of his co-workers.

He's obviously gotten results to match the show's ratings and you can't argue with the results he's spearheaded. The Monday evening show is NBC's top-rated series. As Hannibal Smith, Peppard is back on the small screen with his first series "Banacek" ended in 'Hannibal has a distinct relationship with each of the character's. other characters," explains Peppard of the basis for the show's success. "With Face (Dirk Benedict) he sings duets. He has a serious captain-colonel relationship with Murdock (Dwight Schultz) and he becomes childlike with B.A.

George Peppard

Although Peppard takes his work seriously, he never for-gets what "The A-Team" represents.

"It's a fantasy, a farce," he says. "We never kill anybody. There are no bruises, blood or broken bones. Fantasy gives us the leeway to go wherever we want with the stories.

So the man who played the original Blake Carrington on "Dynasty" has no regrets that he now spends his time with Mr. T instead of Linda Evans or Joan Collins.

"I knew it could be a hit when I read the script," says Peppard of the pilot for "The A-Team." Maybe it's because Peppard's credo seems to be quite close to that of his

"Hannibal knows everyone's going to die," says Peppard. "But that's not a factor. He never considers now his moment. It's not enough for him to give the high and the mighty their due he wants to give them a hot

Linda & Leigh discuss life as parent/divorcee

By Elaina Thompson Remember when a parent's prime effort was to get your offspring safely through, or around, the illnesses of childhood? Now the effort and the worry has lengthened through the teen years and beyond the menaces of germs, viruses and accidents to include the dangers that lurk in the form of peer pressure. If divorce has broken up a family, and although both parents may care deeply, the prime parent of responsibility is the target of greatest anxiety. What if one of both sepa-rated parents has achieved celebrity status? Does it further complicate things?

Linda Miller, who appears with Ralph Waite on CBS' "Mississippi," which will return this fall, has lived the single parent cycle twice. Once as one of the two daughters of Jackie Gleason and his first wife, Genevieve Halford. and then again when her marriage to author/actor Jason Miller ended.

Her mother, she says, is a woman of graciousness and good humor. She was a devoted single parent to Linda and her sister. Her father established his life elsewhere and the days have been few when their paths did, or do, cross. But when it comes to her

For Leigh Taylor-Young of ABC's "The Hamptons" and her 16-year-old son, money was never a worry, but pro viding a stable home "and knowing he has a parent who makes him a priority" was a basic. #### This 'Reggie' isn't an all-star performer

Poor Richard Mulligan. A few years back as Burt Campbell on "Soap," Mulligan endured a battle with impo-

Now in his new ABC series 'Reggie," the problem has appeared again.

But this time, there are more problems for Mulligan. Not only is his character impotent, but so is his sixweek summer series.

So why is Mulligan boasting that his last week on the "Reggie" set was "the best ever in TV history for me." Has he already forgotten how funny he was as an Emmy winner on "Soap"? His per-formance in "Reggie" will suffer in comparison because Mulligan's 1977-81 series is still running in syndication in many parts of the country. But the blame for the lack-not all Mulligan's fault. There are enough recognizable TV names in the cast to share the blame. Chip Zien, who used to realize that because of cable, annoy Tony Randall on "Love, is equally as annoy-Barrie, who never was uti-lized correctly on "Tucker's Witch," finds herself in the same situation as Reggie's understanding wife, and then there's Jean Smart. She was the wisecracking secretary on "Teacher's Only" and continues it as Reggie's libidinous secretary. Dianne Kay, formerly one of the brood on 'Eight is Enough," has traded in Dick Van Patten and now has Mulligan as her TV dad Why is "Reggie" a failure? A lot was made about what Mulligan's new series would be called. It was felt the original title was not American, then after a couple of changes, they settled on just plain "Reggie.

Jackee flowers in 'AW' role of Lily

By Kimberly Redmond

The character of Lily Mason on "Another World" is one of those talked about and hoped for "one-shot" soap opera roles that has turned into a contract part for actress Jackee Harry.

I like to think of my character as a black Opal," says Miss Harry of her character, whose antics she compares to the outrageous Opal Gardner on "All My Children." "I'm friendly with Dorothy Lyman. the actress who plays Opal, and I've taken the lead for my character from her.

Miss Harry, who is also a dancer and a singer, has appeared in numerous Broad way and off-Broadway productions Recently she received rave reviews for the nightclub act she recently performed at a popular New York nightspot. On hand to hear Jackee's repertoire of classic and popular tunes were such notables as Stevie Wonder. D.D. Bridgewater and Chris Calloway (daughter of famed Cab Calloway). One of the audience favorites was ditty titled "Money Was Made to Spend," which is about Jackee's "AW" charac-

Soap stars Candi Earley and Ruth Warrick (Donna Cortlandt and Phoebe Tyler on "All My Children"), John Gabriel (Seneca Beaulac on "Ryan's Hope"), and Tom Neilson and Tina Sloan (Floyd Parker and Lillian Raines of 'Guiding Light") will be apearing in a musical review this month at various summer stock theaters around the New York City area. Problems in Haylage I have had several calls on problems with haylage spoiling. Two major factors are generally involved - moisture and air. If the moisture content is too low or too high, spoilage can very easily occur. Wilting the crops to a moisture range of 60-65% promotes desirable fermentation and decreases losses from spoilage. Many farmers have found it advantageous to dry their crops to 50-60% moisture. This reduces the tonnage handled, produces an excellent, highly palatable feed with a mild, pleasant odor. However, even greater care must be taken to exclude air when making low moisture haylage. Forage should be chopped to 14 to 3/8 inch cut. The silo walls must be in good condition and doors well sealed. The silo should be filled rapidly and the forage should be evenly distributed during filling. The last few loads should be put in wet without wilting and the top should be sealed with plastic cover. Failure to exclude air could result in spoilage, charring or even burning.

Moisture Stress in Corn At the time of this article many of the corn fields are starting to show stress from the lack of moisture. The corn that is intended as ear corn or high moisture corn could be headed for problems unless we get rain soon. I noticed that the ears of the stressed corn were not developing as would be expected. Also a lot of the corn is showing nitrogen blasting. Again, I contribute a lot of this problem to lack of moisture. As things are now it will be important to have your crops analyzed this year for nutrient value before fed to the animals.

European Earwigs - Pest in the Home Earwigs are bugs that are from 4 to 4 inch in length with a brown body. They are easily identified by a prominent pair of forceps at the rear of the body. I have had several people bring them to my office because they found them inside the home. They are only a nuisance in the home; however, outdoors they will come out at night and attack vegetables and flowers. They are easily controlled by spraying Diazinon.

Fungus Diseases on Tomatoes On tomatoes, early blight and anthracnose are active now. Early blight is characterized by leaves showing small irregular dark-brown spots which often enlarge into circular spots that have a target like markings. Brown cankers on stems that may girdle plants at the ground line is also a symptom. The tomato may also be dark, leathery at the end. I would recommend that you continue dusting or spraying with one of the following products: fixed Copper compounds, Captan, Ferbam, Maneb or

President Reagan has requested that the Secretary of Agriculture convene the conference in Chicago on September 2, to discuss emergency relief measures for the farmers of the 26 states that have suffered from prolonged dry conditions. The governors and The Department has assured Congressional delegations from the affected states have been invited to present proposals at the conference.

> After the meeting in Chicago, Secretary Block will report to the President on a "full evaluation of the drought effects."

The Agriculture Department has estimated that the drought, and the largest acreage cutback in history, has reduced the U.S. corn crop by 38% as of August 1. The hot, dry weather that has continued since then will lead to further reductions. Early estimates by local agriculture officials indicate that losses in portions of Central and Western Maryland approach 40% of the

Mrs. Byron stated, "I hope that this conference generates the type of relief that will have a significant impact in alleviating this national misfortune."

Holloway Writes To Legislators About Drought

"The drought of '83 has created serious problems for many Maryland farmers" is the message that Henry Holloway has sent to Washington.

In a letter to Maryland's two U.S. senators and eight representatives in Congress, the president of Maryland Farm Bureau pointed out that most of the state's 18,000 farmers have experienced crop damage. Grain yields in Western and Southern Maryland, and much of the Eastern Shore, have been reduced.

Tobacco production in the five Southern Maryland counties has been affected, with some farmers discing under their late plantings that had not

Holloway suggested to the legislators that farmers who must purchase feed this winter will have to pay from 30 to 50 percent more than last year. Some have already begun feeding dairy cattle and livestock earlier than usual because of the dry condition of pastures.

He pointed out that the eventual impact of this summer's hot, dry weather will reach consumers, with higher prices for food.

Idle Acres Must Be Maintained. Crum Reminds

Good conservation management of land withdrawn from production is a requirement of the 1983 Acreage Reduction and Payment-in-Kind programs. "The diverted acreage must be protected from wind and water erosion throughout the year and weeds must be controlled so that they are not allowed to go to seed," said William B. Crum, chairman of the Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

To protect the soil from wind and water erosion, farmers have applied approved covers such as annual, biennial or perennial grasses, legumes, small grains, and crop residue from minimum till or no-till practices.

"In addition, producers may want to consider installing a permanent conservation practice on this land," said Crum. Terraces, sod waterways, trees, filter strips and windbreaks are especially effective in controlling erosion of soils. "If a permanent cover or practice is installed and maintained, the land will be acceptable for designation as conservation use acreage in any future diversion program through 1985," Crum said. The cost of installing permanent practices on Conservation Use Acreages may be shared with farmers through the Agricultural Conservation Pro-

The responsibility to maintain Conservation Use Acres does not end with the establishment of an approved cover. Program participants must keep weed seed heads from forming. "Mowing or spraying are acceptable methods to control weeds, however, discing is not allowed for weed control since it disturbs the cover and leaves the soil susceptible to erosion," the ASCS official said.

Crum urged all program participants to keep a close watch on their Conservation Use Acres, so that they retain their eligibility for all the program

Protection Of Farmland Topic Of Mathias Bill

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) has reintroduced legislation aimed at preserving the three million acres of farmland that are lost each year to development.

The Farmland Development Rights Act would offer tax advantages to encourage farmers to participate in state programs designed to preserve farmland and resist the pressure to sell thier land to developers.

Mathias noted that farmers and state legislators have devised programs that pay the farmer cash for an easement on the land. This limits his or her rights to sell that land for development purposes.

"Although these programs have been very effective in helping to keep prime farmland in agricultural production." Mathias said, "state and local governments can benefit from federal assistance in making these programs more accessible and attractive."

The Mathias bill encourages farmers to participate in the state programs. Specifically, it exempts from capital gains taxation the money received for the sale of the easement, provided it is rolled-over for to 550.00.

improvements or purchase of new farmland.

The Farmland Development Rights Act provids a one-time capital gains exemption on the income if the farmer is over 55. It also allows the difference bethe amount received for the land to be deducted as a gift for tax purposes.

of farmland is plowed under and replaced by hot blacktop," the Maryland Senator said. "This bill will help protect our nation's greatest resource so that we will continue to be the breadbasket of the world."

PROPERTY VALUE

"Value" is one of the words heard most often in the areas of real estate and building. "What's my home worth now?" "What's my lot worth?" "What will my home be worth five years from now?" "How much more will my home be worth if I install air conditioning?" "How much value will a garage add?" These are some of the recurring questions we hear all the time. They're fair questions, to say the least. If you're going to buy a home for, say, $55,000, you have a right to know the value of your investment.

Many factors affect the value of a home. For example, if you buy a home on the outskirts of a city, with a few miles of highway separating your place from the city limits, the directional growth of the city must be considered. If the town is growing in your direc- $ tion, chances are your property value will increase, but this could } depend on WHICH sec- 2 tion of the city is going } in your direction!

Point of information: Realtors can advise you on current or future value of property. But, if you require an official appraisal for legal or 3 investment purposes, get it from a qualified $ Real Estate Appraiser. Not all Realtors are official appraisers.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices.

Oakland-Area Family Loses Home To Fire

An Oakland-area family of five became homeless late Saturday night when fire totally gutted their trailer home and destroyed all of their possessions.

The residence, located along the Old Crellin Road about two miles south of Route 39, was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Spiker.

Also residing there were the couple's three children, Raymond Jr., age 10; Rebecca, five and Amanda, three.

Garrett Central Alarm dispatched firefighters from Oakland and Deer Park and the county air cascade unit presently stationed at Gorman at 11:21 p.m. after the fire was discovered by the Spiker family, 14-year-old female during who had just returned to the home from LaVale.

According to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, Spiker noticed smoke coming from the trailer upon the family's arrival. Spiker told Carola that he opened the door to the residence and the interior of the trailer, and two large wood frame additions to the residence, burst into flame immediately. Spiker notified Garrett Central Alarm from a neighbor's residence.

Oakland fire personnel remained on the scene for over three and one-half hours. Deer Park VFD was turned back to its station, soon after being notified. Also responding to the scene was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries

Carola said that the fire appears to be accidental in nature and is most likely linked to the fuse box and the wiring in the structure. He said that the blaze seems to have started in the kitchen area, but his investigation is continuing.

Spiker reported that he does have insurance on the struc-

Man Pleads Guilty To Sexual Abuse

A Mt. Lake Park man, Roger Dale Guthrie, Sr., 39, pled guilty to sexual child abuse against a yesterday's session of Garrett County Circuit Court.

According to State's Attorney James Sherbin, who read the statement of facts to the court, Guthrie came home in the early hours of February 17, and entered the bedroom of the child. He began making advances to her, and following a struggle and refusals to submit to his demands, the victim was offered $20 to cooperate. Again she refused, fighting off the attack.

According to the records, her 12-year-old brother ran into the room and attempted to assist, but was ordered out of the room. He ran to the home of a nearby neighbor, Holly Crosco, for help, but the report says that help was denied. Law enforce ment officials were not summoned until later the next day after the child had gone to school. Garrett County Social Services were alerted, and police were called. The girl's mother and a younger sibling were away from the home at the time of the attack, due to illness of the

County Teachers'

Garrett County teachers will go to work this Thursday unsure what type of salary increase

Although the school board negotiated a $700 salary increase for teachers with the Garrett County Teachers Association, a lower than expected allocation from the Garrett County Commissioners has meant the board will not be able to meet that sum.

The GCTA refused to go back to the bargaining table to renegotiate the salary increase twice this year, meaning the school board will have to set the amount itself.

School officials expect the board to determine that amount at the board's September 8 meeting when it is also expected to adopt the FY1983-84 budget. If the board does approve a salary increase at this meeting, it will have done so in time for the first pay check of this school year in October.

Twelve-month employees, who were also scheduled for cility. salary increase, have worked into the new fiscal year under last year's salary amount. Those employees may receive granted, school officials noted.

A Denies Grant

The town of Grantsville has Washington, D.C., following a been notified that it will not be awarded a Farmers Home Administration grant for the town's share of costs for sewer

According to Wendell Keaton, municipal coordinator, the FHA decision was based on a review of the costs for the collector system repairs, when the FHA determined that the cost does not exceed what the average homeowner can afford to pay, according to their charts. The total amount the town should be able to pay, according to FHA, is $338,000 and the local share does not exceed this amount.

The town could qualify for a loan, however, but no decision has been made on where to seek the money for the ineligible costs which now appear to be between $130,000 and $150,000. Individual homeowners would be responsible for about $20,000 of that amount, for work which must be done on private prop-

The town has discussed the option of borrowing extra money to loan to homeowners for the work on private property but has not completely explored all the options as yet, according to Keaton.

Health Department Schedules Rabies Clinics For Pets

The Garrett County Health Department announced this week that it has planned a series of rabies clinics for next week for all cats and dogs.

Clinics will be held at Kitzmiller community building September 6 from 5:30 to 6:30; Northern High School September 7 from 5:30 to 6:30; Route 40 School at Long Stretch September 8 from 5:30 to 6:30; and Southern Middle School September 10 from 1 to 3 p.m.

County Teachers To Work Full Day Thursday

Garrett County teachers will be required to work a full day on the first day of school Thursday even though students will be dismissed at 1 p.m.

The matter of whether the a full day on the first day of school came up when the Garrett County Teachers Association filed a grievance in May arguing that the contract was ambiguous on the point.

The GCTA's grievance was turned down by school officials and then went to a federal arbitrator who also denied the grievance in his decision made August 22.

County school officials received the decision Monday from arbitrator Seymour Strongin who stated teachers have been required to work a full duty day on the first school day at least for the past nine contract years and have done so without protest.

Those attending the hearing before the arbitrator were school board attorney Ralph Burnett, school superintendent Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, assistant superintendent James Lupis, GCTA attorney James Whattam and GCTA representatives Tom Shaffer and Lowell

Sand Flat Pastor Files Charges Of Trespassing Against 26 People

A confrontation at the Sand Flat Assembly of God, Deep Creek Lake, resulted in trespassing charges filed by Rev. W. Gregory Grant against 26 people as well as a charge of battery filed by Tom Bernard, Oakland, against church official Terry Wolfe, Loch

The incident began at about 8 p.m. Thursday when the group of people assembled in the church parking lot intending to meet in the church to discuss church business.

Grant said he first learned of the meeting from Wolfe who was working with the youth choir in the church that evening. He and Wolfe were both over the end of a church pew, concerned for the safety of teachers were required to work Grant's family and the youth because of recent threatening phone calls, one openly from one person who was there for the meeting.

> Most people there to attend the meeting were not active members of the church, Grant said, and did not have his authorization to use the church. There were three active members, some placed on inactive status by the church deacons as disciplinary action, and others who no longer attended the church.

Grant stated he did not mind the group meeting in the parking lot, but when they started to go inside the church, he instructed them to leave.

The group refused to leave. Group spokesman told him they were membes of the church and they were going to discuss church business inside. One leader of the group, Tom Bernard, managed to gain entrance into the church and locked himself in the bathroom. Grant then said he deemed it necessary to call the county police to assure peace. Bernard, who said he entered the bathroom to avoid a fight with Grant or Wolfe, eventually came out of the bathroom after handing several important papers he had brought to the meeting out the bathroom window to those standing out-

Bernard said Wolfe confronted him and told him he would not allow him to go outside the church. According to the report filed by Bernard in the battery charge, Wolfe then grabbed Bernard around the rib cage and tried to wrestle him to the floor, but the two stumbled and fell down a flight of stairs.

Bernard attempted several times to get to the door to unlock it only to be pulled back by Wolfe. Wolfe succeeded in getting between Bernard and the door and grabbed Bernard under the arms and threw him bruising Bernard's left hip and

By then, Grant had contacted police and the group was allowed to peaceably enter the church for its meeting. Garrett County Sheriff's Deputies Charles Nolan and Don Tucker responded to the call, which first came as a breaking and entering in progress at the church. Also responding was Oakland policeman Sgt. Roger Lewis. Upon their arrival and after talking with Grant, the deputies instructed the group to leave.

The group again refused saving they were members of the church and were there on church business.

FORGET ME-NOTS, reminders of the lasting debt of gratitude to all who served the nation in wartime for the maintenance of freedom, were presented to the Garrett County commissioners by members of Chapter No. 29, Disabled American Veterans, right after the commissioners signed a proclamation designating September as Forget Me Not Month in Maryland. Each year the DAV conducts a sale of these simulated forget-me-nots and members of Chapter No. 29 and its auxiliary will be accepting donations for forget-me-nots throughout September. Proceeds are used for projects involving veterans who reside in local nursing homes. In the photo, seated, left to right, are county commissioners Ernie Gregg, Elwood Groves, and John Braskey. Standing, same order, are Wilda Sanders, commander of Chapter 29 DAV Auxiliary; William Corbin, past commander of Chapter 29;

Oakland Man Is Found Guilty On Robbery, Assault

An Oakland man, Timothy David Ford, 23, was found guilty yesterday on charges of robbery and battery against a Morgantown, W.Va., man, Joseph Trout.

According to testimony offered before Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer and visiting Allegany County Circuit Court Judge Gary Leasure, Trout was driving toward Crellin on the evening of January 31 when his car broke down. As he was walking to a residence in the Crellin area, he was approached by Ford and another young man, Ben Guthrie, 17, whom he knew. Guthrie questioned Trout concerning some money he claimed he owed him, and a scuffle ensued between the two men. Ford admitted in court yesterday that he had joined in the altercation, striking the

A Step Backward . . .

The Garrett County Teachers Association (GCTA) is an affiliate of the Maryland State Teachers Association and the National Education Association. Its major purposes are: to negotiate teachers' contracts with the board of education; to support programs and push for legislation which benefits the teaching profession and the quality of education; to provide a grievance procedure whereby teachers may challenge a board of education decision or policy which may conflict with their contract; and generally to upgrade the image and professional standards of the teaching occupation.

We believe that, for the most part, GCTA has a positive record in carrying out these and other duties on behalf of Garrett County's teachers. The organization has brought about some major improvements in contracts for the teachers and has done much to improve the quality of education in the county. We have commended GCTA a number of times in the past for its efforts.

However, the recent grievance filed by the organization in an attempt to force early dismissal for teachers on the first day of school tomorrow, in our opinion, represents a significant step backward by the GCTA (see story on page one). To waste valuable time and money and require a federal arbitrator to come to Oakland to render a decision on such a ridiculous, petty grievance is nothing short of ludicrous. To go to such lengths so teachers do not have to spend about two and one-half hours of additional tune in the schools does nothing but reinforce the unfortunate attitude of a large segment of the public that teachers are the epitome of laziness. To make it still worse, most teachers have just enjoyed nearly three months of summer vacation.

We do not believe that most teachers are lazy and we were pleased to hear from many teachers this week who expressed the same outrage at the filing of such a grievance. If a vote were taken among county teachers on whether or not to pursue this grievance, we are convinced that the result would be an overwhelming "no!"

We also understand that even members of the GCTA governing body were against the grievance and that it takes only one person to file a grievance. It was filed, however, on behalf of GCTA.

We believe that GCTA is still the best possible negotiating organization for county teachers. However, one or two blunders such as this one could change that opinion in a hurry.

In Other Words

Forgive Us Our Trespasses

by Carol Fox

Throughout the pages of U.S. history, we are continually reminded of the reasons why this country was formed, has grown, the world. We all know that the principal reason surely was freedom from religious persecution

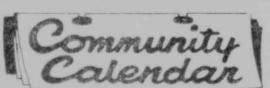

The recent fiasco surrounding the minister and congregation at the Sand Flat Assembly of God Church, near Oakland, has plunged those who are involved, for whatever reason, into deep spiritual darkness. No longer are the doors of the Lord's house open to all those who wish to worship there.

Does one man or one group of men have the authority to bar the door of a house-any house-of worship? Does not the New Testament say "Those who welcome you are welcoming me. And when they welcome me, they are welcoming God who has sent me"? Who's been at the Sand Flat Assembly of God to welcome those who come? Armed, uniformed policemen?

Regardless of any man made laws written by mere mortals. the church is the people. The church, any church, belongs to us all, and those who seek a division among the people are tampering with much more serious problems. The harm which has come to the body of believers at Sand Flat is surely not worth the ecclesiastical politics, the retention of the pastoral assignment, or any satisfactions which stand to be gained.

Those who believe in one universal God, and the complete freedom to worship that God without judgment from any man or group of men should stand aside and pray today for an immediate end to this factional split. Physical violence between members, power struggles, and financial disputes have no part in what was meant to be a place of respite, and a place to seek inner peace.

The house of the Lord was not meant to be a battleground.

To the Editor:

In reference to your editorial of 8/10/83, I have this to say. Twenty years ago the Montgomery County Council forced handgun control on its population. At that time they insisted rifles and shotguns would not be involved.

Chapter 57, title "Weapons" of the Montgomery County Code (1972) has a new section which was to become effective July 1, 1983, but is now under appeal. Section 57-12, title "Sale and Possession of Fixed Ammunition" which requires the purchaser exhibit, at the time of sale, a valid registration certificate. The fixed ammunition to be sold is of the same caliber or gauge as the firearm described in the registration certificate.

All rifles, shotguns, revolvers, pistols, air guns, and air rifles will be registered. If you own a 12 gauge, a 16 gauge, and 20 gauge, this means three certificates must be presented at time of purchase for each box

Happy Birthday, Fayette

by Harry Fox

One of the unique features of living on the mountaintop is the proximity of our neighboring states of West Virginia and Pennsylvania. With the residents of Mineral, Preston and Tucker counties in West Virginia, and Somerset and Fayette counties in Pennsylvania, we share a highland region that is rich in natural splendor and peopled by hardworking folk with whom we have much in

Not to be overlooked, either, are the many personal and cultural ties-that, despite state lines and school districts, make our next door neighbors seem like "family."

During September the residents of Fayette County, PA, are marking a significant milestone in their history. September 26 will mark the 200th anniversary of that subdivision. Many countywide events and historical commemorations will conclude in a spectacular finale on that date.

As we prepare to observe the 350th anniversary of the found-. ing of Maryland, it might do well for us to ponder the many things we share with our neighbor across the Mason-Dixon line.

Fayette's namesake, the Marquis de Lafayette looms large in both national and Maryland history, since this revolutionary sympathizer spent so much of his time here in our two states. Garrett, like Fayette, is a "toddler," having been formed out of its older sister counties.

Not the least in importance are the family ties we share—many natives of the region have kith and kin on both sides of the line. (Even imports like this writer were lucky enough to meet and marry a Pennsylvania gal, who hails from the village of

As residents of Maryland unfurl the flag of the Calverts in honor of their own 350th birthday, we Garrett residents may wish to take a nod in the direction of our friends in Fayette (quite a few of whom read this newspaper to keep track of friends and family!).

SPAGHETTI SQUASH

Want something out of the ordinary for summertime dishes? Get acquainted with a relative newcomer to the produce department or farmers' market, spaghetti squash. It may be the answer to the weight-watcher's prayer for pasta from July to January, its peak season, according to Dr. Dorothy VanZandt, Food and Nutrition Specialist. While it's similar on the outside to its cousins, other hard-shell squash varieties, its interior, once cooked, reveals an amazing and unique difference. The golden flesh cooks into long strands, remarkably like spaghetti in appearance, texture and

The oval-shaped goldenyellow squash is called "spaghetti" because when you serve it, pulling the squash from the shell with two forks, it separates into long thin strands. It's delicious with only butter or margarine, a bit of salt and coarsely cracked pepper. Or serve it like spaghetti, with your favorite pasta sauce-at a far lower cost in calories! Some cookbooks suggest boiling or steaming the squash (you leave it whole, puncture the skin in several places and cover with water), but others find this leaves the squash too mushy. They prefer baking it. Just cut it in half lengthwise and remove the seeds, cover loosely with foil pie and bake in a preheated 350°F. oven for 20 to 45 minutes (depending on size) until the squash is fork-tender.

Spaghetti squash can be cooked in a microwave oven, too. Wash the squash, pierce rind deeply several times with sharp knife for steam outlets, and place in oven on paper towel. Microwave at high until squash yields to pressure and feels soft, four to six and onehalf minutes per pound. Let it stand five minutes. Halve crosswise, scoop out seeds and fiber, peals will conduct a public hearand twist out long strands of flesh with fork.

medicine and physiology), Dr Brian Josephson (1973 in physics), and Dr. John Eccles (1963 brain research) - brought a different perspective to the dialogue, but all found common ground (an isthmus) in the conviction that their scientific work brought them closer to a spiritual Source of life. For many of those who attended the programs, it was a revelation to realize that science brings some people closer to God.

It must also be acknowledged that there are many scientists who, unlike those Nobel scientists, do not believe there is an isthmus between science and religion, let alone a justification for believing in God. Perhaps the most we can say is that scientists are divided like most groups of people on the question of religion and God. Some, like the Psalmist, look into the night sky and find "the heavens are telling the glory of God; and the firmament proclaims his handiwork" (Psalms 19:1). Some do not. The difference, as in all things, seems to reside in the individual.

A God Not Far Actually, that's the way it has always been in our world. Religion cannot prove God and science cannot disprove Him. There is evidence of both kinds all about us in life. Ultimately, it boils down to the way each of us responds to the evidence we experience. In Romans 1, Paul says that "Ever since the creation of the world, this invisible nature, namely His eternal power and deity, has been clearly perceived in the things that have been made." When I take the time to behold this marinstead of dimming that perception, for me at least, science only makes it brighter and clearer, revealing, as the writer of Acts puts ABC's "Monday Night Football" kicks off its 14th season with a game between the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins and the Dallas Cowboys.

There will be 16 Monday night telecasts this season and five prime-time specials, including the first ever, on a Friday. Approximately 51 million viewers tuned in to some portion of a "Mon-day Night" broadcast last season. Washington and the team they beat for the Super Bowl crown last season, the Miami Dolphins, will each appear on three occasions, as will the Cowboys, San Diego Chargers, Green Bay packers, Los Angeles Raiders, New York Jets and New

'We Got It Made' star welcomes comparisons

By Peter Meade

The title of NBC's newest sitcom may be a slight exaggeration of the product. But if "We Got It Made" does remind anyone of "The Odd Couple" and "Three's
Company," series star Matt McCoy hopes it is success by association for the Thursday night half-hour.

'I'm thankful for the comparisons," says the handsome 27-year-old actor. "I'd like for us to be that success-

The comedy, produced by former CBS and NBC boss Fred Silverman, revolves around two New York City roommates (McCoy and Tom Villard); one happens to be neat and - surprise, surprise! - the other, sloppy. So they decide to hire a maid, but instead of ending up with a 'Hazel' or even an "Alice" from "The Brady Bunch," they select a Heather Thomas clone (Teri Copley). Of course, they are quite happy what will their extremely attractive and attentive girlfriends think? Rumor has it no one on the show thinks at all. McCov admits that the shows have been a lot of fun to do and that the five regular cast members (all virtual unknowns) have gotten along great. He had some practice at this since he'd done a one-shot CBS pilot in 1981 called "Penn N. Inc." But McCov doesn't mind if he only gets to pick up his golf clubs on the weekends from now on. He has also given up his New York City apartment and moved to Los Angeles. And to prove that there is some element of realism in the "We Got It Made" story, the neat actor found out - too late - that he has sublet to a slob. But if the show goes well, he can follow the story line and hire a maid.

The three networks shot 78 pilots for the new season. says McCov. "We're having a good time with the show. I hope people will just sit back and have a good time watch-McCoy is happy to be working ing it. We're not trying to cure

'Search' searches for missing tapes

By Kimberly Redmond

"Search for Tomorrow" made soap history on Aug. 4 when the show was broadcast live for the first time since 1968. The shows had to be done by the "old" method after it was confirmed that the tapes of that day's episode were missing, and presumed stolen from the editing room at Reeves Teletape Theater in Manhattan, where "SFT" is

'Two copies of the show, taped on July 22, were sitting in the editing room ready to be edited when they disappeared." said "SFT" executive producer, Joanna Lee. "There is no proof, but I am convinced it was a theft. The tapes were seen here at closing time, but they were gone the following Monday morning. When questioned that the missing tapes were part of a publicity stunt. Miss Lee said, "If I had planned to do this I wouldn't have chosen that particular show. There were several others that I would have used. Our taping schedule was just too strenuous to afford us a time before Aug 4 when we could have taped the entire show over.

At a studio party after the live broadcast it was announced that "SFT" would not "disappear" (as rumored) from the network's daytime lineup any time soon. NBC has renewed the soap through December of this year.

"I'm confident of the future of 'Search,' " said Miss Lee.
"I believe we are now a new and exciting show and, in my opinion, we rank among the best of the daytime serials. Speaking of "SFT." the

This figure represents the sum total of all taxable real property in Maryland's 24 subdivisions. It includes residential, commercial, and agricultural properties, the three main classifications of real property for taxation purposes. Residential property, now at $27.3 billion, comprise by far the largest segment. The Nutrition Committee of the American Heart Association has prepared a series of articles providing information and recipes for healthier diets. Another of those articles, supplied by Wendy Norris, dietician for the Garrett County Memorial Hospital and a member of the commmitte, is as follows:

That first meal of the day, be it breakfast or brunch, is very important. We need to get every day off to a good start. Many people who do not eat breakfast can't seem to motivate themselves in the morning. By allowing time in busy schedules for breakfast, we can get an early boost. Wouldn't it be great to have more energy earlier!

One of the recommendations of the American Heart Association for improving nutrition is to reduce the amount of saturated fat in the American diet. Regular sausage patties are high in saturated fat. The Heart Cookbook recipe for "Mock Sausage Patties" will reduce the amount of saturated fat in your diet and still allow you to have a breakfast meat.

MOCK SAUSAGE PATTIES

1 Pound Lean Beef, Ground Twice 1 Tablespoon Lemon Juice

Rind of Medium Lemon, Grated

4 Cup Fine Dry Bread Crumbs

14 Teaspoon Sage

4 Teaspoon Ginger

Mix together beef, lemon juice and rind, bread crumbs, sage, ginger and broth. Let stand 15 minutes.

Form into 8 patties about 34-inch thick. Brush a heavy skillet with oil, and set over heat for 1 or 2 minutes. Put in the sausage patties and cook 7 or 8 minutes on each side, or broil until brown, turn and brown on opposite side. Serve hot. Yield: 8 Patties, Approx. Cal./Serv.: 140.

To complete the brunch recipes this month, the Nutrition Education Committee of the American Heart Association is offering a sweet recipe idea. Many people enjoy having sweets at breakfast, lunch, dinner and at any other appropriate time! With this recipe, you can still have your sweet, but it will be better for

How can a sweet like "Cinnamon Coffee Cake" be better for you? By reducing some of the sugar and oil in recipes, using egg of whole eggs and skim milk in place of whole milk, you can use recipes which are better for you. Each recipe needs to be modified on an individual basis to get the best results, but that is part of the fun. The "Cinnamon Coffee Cake" recipe has already been modified to reflect the changes mentioned

Shown above is one of the two marked cars, this one operated by Deputy Russell Drenning, and there is also one unmarked car. According to the commissioners' office, the county realized a savings of $6,000 by getting the vehicles through a contract with Maryland state police which are using similar Chevrolet Impalas for their road patrols. Town Spirit? Guess it's time to put it to the test or as the mayor told me, "You've got your work cut out!" So here

The town hall is crying out for exterior maintenance! Its paint is peeling, wires are showing, and the foundation and columns are decaying. This year $2,500 was included in the town budget for repair of two sides of the building. Repairs for the remainder are scheduled for fiscal year 1985.

So - how best to spend the money? Since this Greek Revival Building has historic significance, many would like to see its original character preserved. If this is to be achieved then repairs and restoration both need to begin. The $2,500 would quickly be depleted with repairs and little money would be left for cosmetic surgery. However, if the cosmetic work could be accomplished by town citizens - we all would be winners. To kick off this movement, council member Welton Lane has generously offered to supply the necessary paint. Dave Turney, Mt. Lake Park council member and member of the Oakland Jaycees, reports that the Jaycees have kindly adopted the town hall project and plan to assist with its restoration. Additionally, other residents have offered their time, financial support and various other donations to insure that Mountain Lake Park preservation becomes a reality.

It is an on-going project to restore and preserve old buildings, but as we saw this summer there are many town residents who truly appreciate the remnants of our Victorian society. We'll see if we can pull together as a community and preserve our heritage. Now we'll find out what the buildings mean to all of us. Let's hope these remaining buildings see their 100th birthdays and beyond with their integrity intact.

If you can and want to help us restore the town hall please contact Kathy Paugh at the town hall at 334-2250. Let her know how you would like to assist with this project. We hope to begin by mid-September at the latest.

Your town will thank you!

Test Silage as It Goes Into the Silo This year a forage test on corn going into the silo for silage will be most critical. No doubt dry weather will have damaged many, many acres of corn across the county. Regardless of the conditions, be sure that you get samples pulled as the material goes into the silo. I have the kits at my office. Silage changes very little while it is in the silo, so a test when it goes in tells you exactly what you will be feeding when it comes out next winter.

Attention - Avoid Nitrate Toxicity Drought can cause plants such as corn and sudan grass to accumulate abnormally high amounts of nitrate. When fed to livestock, nitrate can be converted in the rumen to highly toxic nitrate. Cattle are more susceptible than sheep. Feeding carbohydrate supplements such as corn grain helps to reduce the risk. Ensiling also reduces the nitrate content but levels can still be excessive in drought silage. The high nitrate level also contributes to the formation of "silo gas" which can be toxic to humans and animals who come in contact with it at the solo. Prevention of nitrate poisoning can be accomplished by following these guidelines if it becomes necessary to feed forages that are potentially high in nitrate content:

Provide adequate carbohydrate.

Don't give hungry animals a full feed of succulent forage. Cattle tolerate high levels of nitrate if introduced gradually into signs of toxicity such as labored animais i breathing or staggering. Mucous membrane tissue will appear bluish due to lack of oxygen in the blood. Nitrate ties up the oxygen carrying capacity of hemoglobin in the blood. 5. Dilute suspect feed with other feeds.

6. Prevent "boss" cows from eating more than their share of Weeds in Lawns This summer most lawns turned brown as turf grasses become dormant during the hot dry weather. Grass roots should remain alive and the turf return to green with the coming of cooler days and frequent rains. In the meantime, lawn weeds seem to thrive in the hot dry weather. Broadleaf weeds such as dandelion, plantain, ground ivy and others can easily be controlled with applications of broadleaf lawn weed killers made anytime in the fall before cold weather.

Kick-Off Dinner

Jane Fox, Friendsville, showed slides of her recent visit to the Scandanavian Countries at the annual Farm Bureau Kick-Off Dinner meeting held Wednesday evening at the Bittinger Community Building.

Jay Hoffman, Maryland Farm Bureau field representative, discussed the importance of Farm Bureau membership and outlined challenges and problems facing Farm Bureau in 1984. He likened the annual Farm Bureau membership campaign to farming, saying, "It means starting all over again every year, starting from scratch. But last year, every county in the state met its quota, 16 experienced a gain in membership, and this year we realize an even better record than that."

The group of 26 making the

ANYTHING CHALLENGING is a magnet to local artist Ethel Schlossnagle as she tries her brush-wielding hand at varied types of painting. A current exhibit of her work in oils and acrylic is on display at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland until September 8. A number of years ago (Mrs. Schlossnagle would not be any more definite on the time) she began painting on her own, without lessons, and won several red ribbons at the county fair. She took her first formal lessons this past winter at the Travel World Park in Clearwater, Fla., from Hope Skikorski. In the meantime, she received the encouragement and help of various family members and friends to pursue her art. One of the paintings on display is of the "home farm" she and her husband Clark operated near Hoyes for 40 years, and is naturally a special favorite of hers. Mrs. Schlossnagle wants her work to show what she sees, and favors a realistic look, whether it be a local or faraway landscape, a floral still life, or pictures of Christ as she imagines him to be depicted in the 23rd Psalm or pulling Peter from the water. After 40 years of farming, she and her husband bought a home in Mt. Lake Park, and divide their time between here and Florida. They are parents of five children, Linda Sanders, Oakland; Darlene Almon, Illinois; Louis, California; Roy, Ohio; and Ellis, New Market, Md. They have 13 grandchildren, and when not involved with volunteer work at Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home or traveling, the artist can be found devoting time to her paints.
